a dashing gambler and his beautiful but unserupulous wife came to light on Wednesday, when Mrs. Edwin F. Mack, wife of the cashier of the Citizens' Savings Bank of Detroit, filed suit in the Circuit Court asking the setting aside of an agreement into which she recently entered, whereby she promised to leave Detroit and her husband forever, waiving all rights to any claims upon him or his estate in consideration of $4500 in cash.

About a year and a half ago there came to Detroit, a dashing blonde woman well under 30, who was accompa-nied by her husband, Andrew Granger. The couple had plenty of money and bought a residence in an aristocratic part of the city. Mrs. Granger's ex-treme beauty soon gained her a footing in society; she entertained lavishly, and was soon a prominent social figure. Granger was absent a good deal of the time, but this did not retard his wife's hospitality. One evening Mrs. Granger was introduced to Edwin F. Mack, a young man of wealth and position and a member of half the clubs in the

Mr. Mack was smitten with Mrs. iranger's beauty and charming manners, and society gossips were soon discussing the growing intimacy between the pair. Last August society was shocked by the announcement that a divorce had been granted in Chicago to Mrs. Granger from her husband, and that she had calabrated the event by through a newspaper man who returned last fall from a European tour and recognized Mrs. Granger-Mack as a wealthy American widow, who with her brother (Granger) were the cause of a duel between a Belgian diplomat and a Parisian, of family, in Paris. Mack heard the story and ran the game to earth. Mrs. Mack agreed to accept $4500 and leave Mack and Detroit forever.

She secured a cool $10,000, besides her jewels. Her return is a surprise, but she is after a slice of Mack's estate and says she means to have it. The woman's past life has been full of intrigues and it is believed that the whole affair was a conspiracy between Mr. and Mrs. Granger to fleece Mack.
